of them are about a damaged, wrong or missing item: the kind of case a photo could settle

71

mention a bot

Resolve it inside the chat, and let people reach a person

For a damaged, wrong or missing item under a set value, a photo in the chat triggers an instant refund or credit.

2

A person after two tries

If the bot hasn't solved it in two turns, offer a person in the same chat, with the wait time shown.

3

No email step

Keep every case in the app with a visible status: received, with an agent, resolved.

4

Close the loop

Ask "Did this fix it?" at the end and reopen the case in one tap if not.

HOW I'D KNOW IT WORKED

Share of item issues resolved in the first chat, with no email, every week.

Guardrail: refund cost per order stays flat as photo refunds roll out.

WHAT I CAN'T SEE

Zepto's support flows or refund rules today. Some of this may already exist; treat these as starting points.
